HISTORY

For the first time in twelve long years the school bell will cease to ring for this the graduating class of 1944. The knowledge that we have reached that attainment makes us proud, but we regret that the time has come to relinquish our friendships and associations here.

But of the original primary class of forty-three girls in 1932, only Helen Barker remains. Of the forty-six boys, only Floyd Holbrook is now present. Robert Jessee, also of this beginning class, was with us until the end of September when he entered the U. S. N.

The remaining fourteen members have been annexed at different intervals as follows:

Marie Suit joined us in the fourth grade, from Sulphur Springs, Virginia. Belva Kilgore entered our class in grade five. Mildred Brooks, Hershell Lawson and Fred Lawson joined us in the eighth grade from Dry Fork. Estelle Bays, Lloyd Evans and Virginia Sutherland came into our class from Dwina, and also Nell Holbrook was added last year through her summer school courses. Arthur Hileman, now our class president, joined us in the eighth grade from Virginia City. Faye Hecht re-entered the high school here three years ago in the ninth grade and became a member of the class by taking additional courses. We were happy to welcome Audrey Howell from Coeburn, last year. Finally, Joe Allen and Anna Lee Greer were united with us from Dante, making a total of sixteen members.

Although our class has been assembled as a whole for a very short period, we have established warm friendships and close ties. We regret the loss of any others who might have been with us, for there is power in large numbers. Realizing that we are not the best nor the largest class of this our alma mater, yet we have played some part in the drama of St. Paul Hi, and we have capitalized on its resources, including our principal, our teachers and working materials. We hope that our leaving will make a vacancy not too great to be filled by those who follow us, and that this yearbook will leave a good impression of our class for years to come.

SERVICE PAGE

To the boys and girls now in the service from our school and town, we dedicate this page as a tribute which, we hope, will express our gratitude for their splendid sacrifice. May God bless each and every one of them and bring them back soon.

There are several boys that would have graduated with our class this year, but had to miss all the fun and excitement of the senior play and commencement. Among these were:

Robert Jessee	(Navy)
Albert Holbrook	(Army)
Billy Doyle	(Navy)
Fred Holt	(Army)

Some of the former members found other things to interest them and went out to make their way in the world before they were called into the service of their country. These include:

Wallace Pennington	(Navy)
Junior Hensley	(Navy)
Junior Holbrook	(Navy)
Albert Tichenor	(Army)
Harold Buchanan	(Army)

We sincerely feel that, during their sojourn with our class, they added some things that help make the class strong and aggressive, and we will long remember them.

Some of the boys that are now graduating with us will have to leave soon after receiving their diplomas. We wish them the best of luck, and we consider their contributions valuable assets to our class.

To all the men and women in the service, we, the Senior Class of 1944, salute you!

W I L L

We, the Senior Class of '44, St. Paul High School, being of sound minds and bodies, do hereby make, publish, and declare this our last Will and Testament.

P R O P H E C Y

On this eventful day of May 26, we look out into the future and we see our fellow classmates ten years from now.

When school was out, Nell Holbrook joined the Cadet Nurse Corps, but she found she wasn't made for nursing. After the war, when she was released from service, she went to Knoxville Business College, where she prepared herself for her present career.

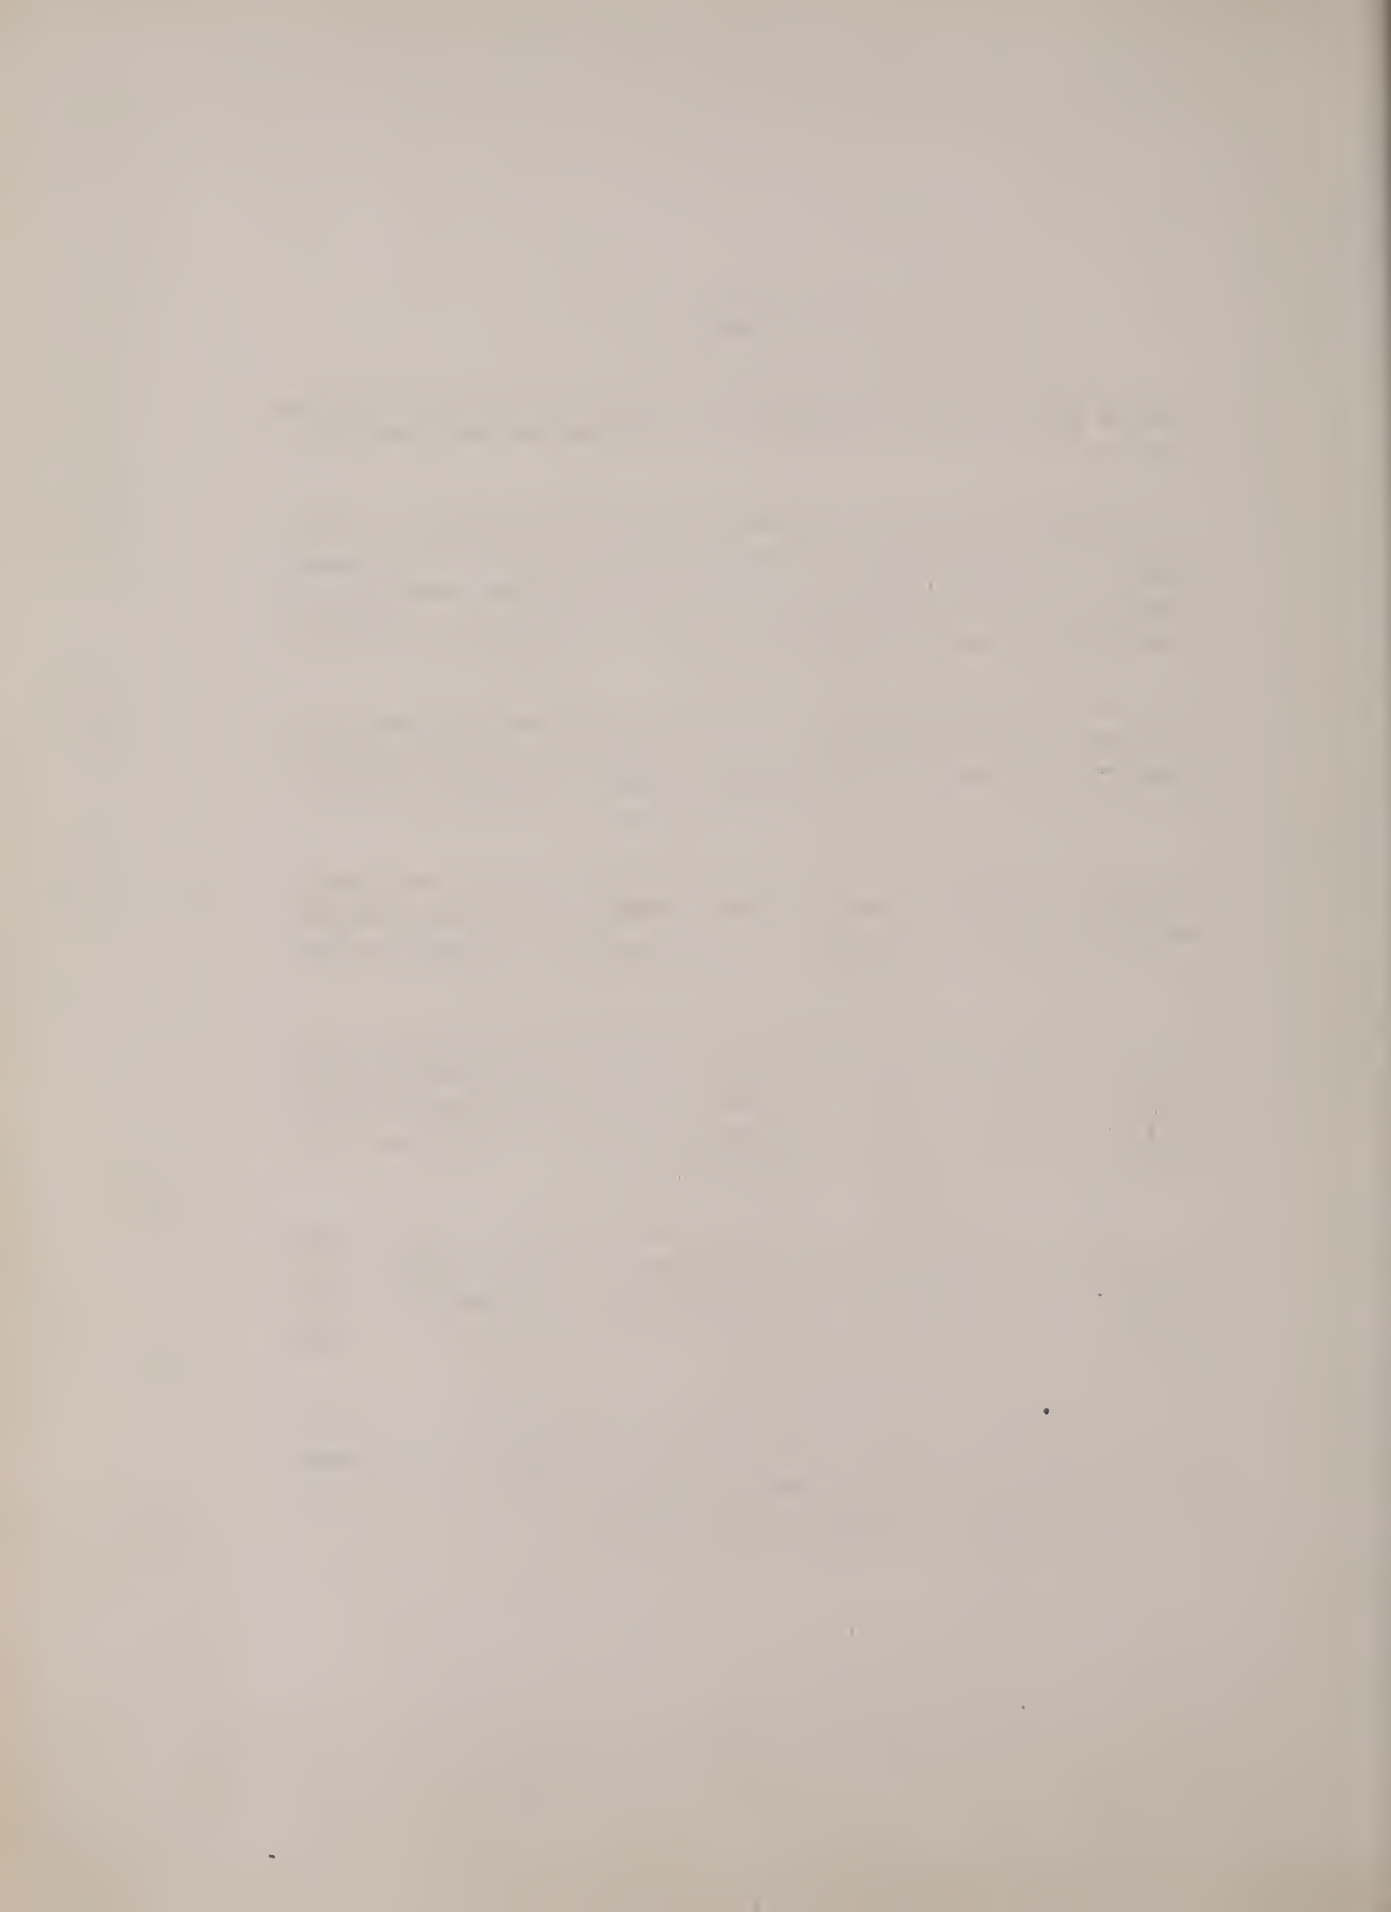

We peep through a window in a big New York shop, and see Faye Heck fitting a stunning dress on Mrs. Morris. Mrs. Morris was very critical, but she could find no fault in her styling or dress-making.

Anna Lee Greear's only ambition was to get married and make a happy home for her husband. And she did just exactly that. We see her now kissing her husband goodbye as he leaves for work.

I heard today that Hershell Lawson was going abroad for a vacation! He has made a comfortable fortune in his garage where he started working after graduation back in '44. He started as a helper, but ended as owner of a great number of successful garages.

When Fred Lawson was inducted in the Army after graduation, he was lucky enough to pass the exams to get into the Air Corps, and guess where he is now! He is in Langley Field teaching young Cadets to fly. The Army must have proven satisfactory.

It's not hard to find Marie Suit, because we see her name nearly every day in the society columns of the newspapers. Yes, she lives on the large estate in Georgia, where she is the center of attraction.

Helen Barker always had a yen for music but her debut on Broadway was a little discouraging so she discovered that her secret of blending pleasant colors and decorative arrangement was to be her life's work. Helen is president of a huge interior decorating firm in downtown New York. And believe me, she is going places in the social world, too. Helen has some wonderful plans that she expects to put into reality when the war is over, and we see her now fulfilling them.

Audrey Howell! Little Audrey, they called her when we were all attending dear old St. Paul High. Audrey went to Portsmouth Navy Yard to contribute her bit to the defense program (and her man in the Navy). Congratulations Audrey! We hope you and your sailor will have smooth sailing through your marriage career.

After graduation Floyd said goodbye to his friends and went to the Navy. First he was a little homesick, although he wouldn't admit it. But soon he became accustomed to this new living and became as popular as he had been in high school. He was selected to take the V-12 course and soon became a full-fledged officer. Remembering his pleasant experiences as grocery boy in St. Paul, he, after the close of the war, secured a position with a grocery store, and eventually, became business manager of a large chain of grocery stores, with headquarters in Richmond.

Tonight is Saturday night and all the girls are gathered around their respective radios to hear the great comedian and announcer, Lloyd Evans. This is the thrill of his life, using television to see all the pretty girls with stars in their eyes. Although they nearly swoon to hear his voice, he is about as thrilled as they are.

Mildred Brooks went to work for the F. B. I., but this was too monotonous, so she went to Abingdon to become a nurse, which is her profession yet.

As soon as she finished high school, Virginia Sutherland began making plans to attend college in September. After a very eventful term at school, she met one of her former admirers, and their romance was very beautiful and led to marriage the following spring. She is now very active in church work and her life has proved to be an example and blessing to all those who know her.

After graduation Arthur Hiloman entered the Navy. He received several promotions. He felt it his duty to serve his country, but he never became extremely fond of the Navy. He continued his education in a government school established for ex-service men where his remarkable talent for drawing was discovered. He was given special training along this line and has become a well-known illustrator for magazines.

Our fun-loving Joe Allen joined the Marines after his high school graduation. He was known as a fellow who could drive away the blues of the poor homesick Marines. He saw action in a number of important fields and came back with several medals. Now he is a popular, good natured guide of wealthy travelers who tour to the interesting countries of South America.

Belva Kilgore got a job in North Carolina to wait until her boy friend came back from the war. Then when the war was over, the wedding bells rang for them. Now we see Belva playing in the evening on her piano for her charming husband and lovely children.

Estelle Bays wanted to rush up the war effort, so she started working in a defense factory. She rushed it up plenty, and now we see her working in her flower garden behind her beautiful brick home in Georgia. She knew what she wanted, and she worked until she got it.

GRADUATION DAY

The day is here and we're now ready
To make our debut, but we feel unsteady.
Our emotions are mixed; can this be graduation,
The event we've lived often in our imagination?

Where is the happiness we have long anticipated?
Our thoughts are sad; our fond hopes have faded:
The parting from friends and associates at last
Has upon our rejoicings a dark gloom cast.

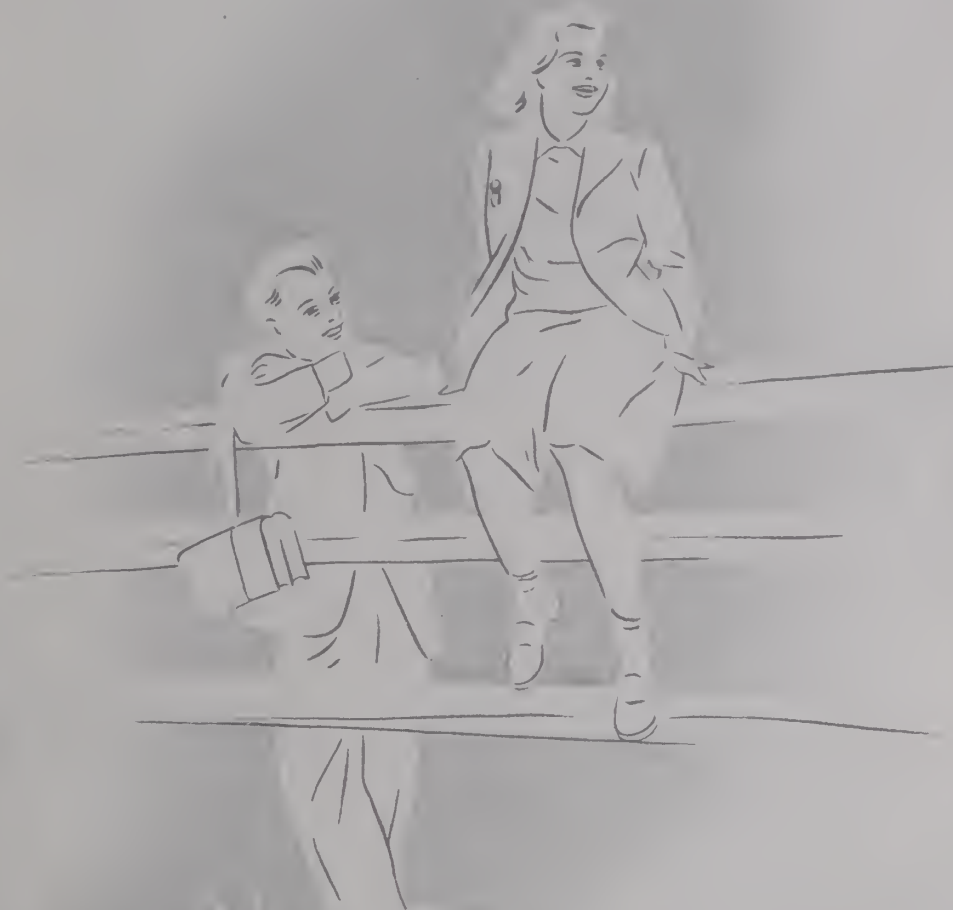

We have striven hard for this eventful day,
Why should we wish to hold our future at bay?
As we have met the turmoils of the past,
So much the stronger should be the players in our cast.

We awaken; as youth must reach maturity
There dawns upon each of us today this surety:
"Into each life some rain must fall"
This separation is a common fate to all.

Then be still, sad hearts! Cease your repinings
Under every cloud there is found silver linings.
Thus speaks the poet of the class of '44
Not as classmates, but as citizens we shall be addressed forevermore!
